INQUIRY-BASED RESEARCH

What do you want to know about your topic? This is your opportunity to be curious and seek out answers, must like an investigative reporter. Think about what makes your topic interesting, exciting and important. If you were having a conversation with an expert on the subject, what would you ask?

Write your question on the lines provided, then seek out the answer and compose it in your own words as if you were explaining it to one of your friends. Be sure to include the resource where you found the answer.
